New Author Releases First Children’s Picture Book About What to Do at the Beach on a Rainy Day

First-time Paws and Claws Publishing author Hope Taylor Spencer wrote this lighthearted, lively rhyming story about two children who must find replacement things to do on a rainy day at the beach.

GREENSBORO, NC—APRIL 1, 2024—This is a rhythmic, lyrical rhyming tale with every other stanza asserting that “nobody plays on rainy days,” the refrain that repeats throughout the book. Its repetition will delight listeners who are certain to chime in on those stanzas.

The first stanza in each set of two sets the stage with activities the children would be doing joyfully on a sunny day at the beach. The playful, energetic artwork shows marine animals on the beach and in the ocean doing what they do, no matter what the weather.

In the text, the author included a wide variety of fun activities that children love to do in the sand and surf. On rainy days, the youngsters sadly tried to replicate those activities indoors. No matter how hard they tried, it just wasn’t the same and will make readers laugh as they read. They’ll understand how much the kids miss all the beach fun they have outdoors on a bright sunny day.

The author has had a lifelong dream of publishing a children’s book “that children would want to explore over and over.” She’s achieved that. Readers will get tickled by the rhymes and enjoy picturing all the fun to be had on the beach.

Whether this book is read aloud or silently, it will be sure to become a favorite of readers as they join in on the rhyming refrains. They’ll be ready to stick their toes into an ocean themselves.
